Chalk messages (below, right) advocating against street harassment
RACHEL CROMIDAS/REDEYE

MAKING STREETS SAFER

Campus groups, others target street harassment

By Rachel Cromidas | REDEYE

“Keep running, baby.”

Danielle Sullivan, 19, a student at Loyola University Chicago, was sick of hearing comments like that one around her Rogers Park home, particularly when she went out jogging in the mornings. The comments, she said, typically came from men she didn’t know and many referenced her physical appearance.

“It makes me feel dirty when it happens. I usually do feel threatened, and sometimes I feel frustrated,” Sullivan said.

So on a recent weekend, Sullivan and a group of about two dozen fellow students—women and men—who felt similarly took to the streets to send a message of their own.

Taking chalk to sidewalks around the Loyola and Granville CTA stations, they wrote, “Catcalls ≠ compliments,” “I’m glad you think I’m pretty, just don’t make me feel unsafe” and other statements.

Street harassment can run the gamut from an unwanted catcall to an uninvited touch or stalking; some people experience street harassment as a near-daily, uncomfortable fact of life, while for others it can be a traumatizing form of sexual violence, according to advocates.

Efforts to combat street harassment have gained prominence in recent years. Last week a viral video published by Hollaback!, an international anti-street harassment nonprofit, shows a woman on the receiving end of catcalls dozens of times while walking through New York City. Others have attempted to document the problem on social media.

Sullivan’s chalk writing near Loyola included the hashtag #WeWILLHollaback to encourage students and other passersby to participate in the conversation online.

“We thought it was the most tangible way for people to see that street harassment is going on,” Sullivan said of her action. “It goes on all over the city, and we had all experienced it.”

Nearly 65 percent of women have experienced some form of street harassment, according to one of the first national surveys on street harassment, published earlier this year by the advocacy organization Stop Street Harassment. Of the women surveyed, 57 percent had experienced verbal street harassment, nearly one quarter have been touched by a stranger on the street and one-fifth reported they have been followed by their harasser. Among men, the survey found about 25 percent had been harassed in public, most commonly homophobic comments as well as slurs about their gender identity.

Street harassment is not necessarily a crime, but it can be if it involves public indecency, groping or touching, or putting the victim in danger. The Chicago Police Department does not track street harassment reports the way other crimes are tracked, but a spokesman said the problem is common and likely underreported.

One reason for that could be that people who speak out about gender inequalities run the risk of receiving threats, according to Emily May, the executive director of Hollaback!, who noted that in the wake of the organization’s viral video, the subject of the video has received numerous rape and death threats online.

“When women demand change, they meet violent demands for their silence,” she said in a statement. “The onslaught of rape and death threats that have been directed at the Shoshana B. Roberts, the subject of the video, are unacceptable but sadly unsurprising.”

Despite the risks of speaking out online, Holly Kearn, the founder and executive director of the national group Stop Street Harassment believes social media has elevated the anti-street harassment movement in recent years by creating more opportunities for victims to share their experiences with the wider world.

“It’s showing that it’s a global issue, not just something that only happens in cities or in bad neighborhoods,” she said.

Kearn’s organization focuses on harassment involving strangers in public, in which the victim is targeted because of his or her gender. Telling a woman to smile more, for example, is street harassment, she said.

“That includes whistles and catcalls and ranges all the way up to sexist and homophobic comments, groping, flashing and following,” she said. “It really impacts harassed peoples’ lives in significant ways, especially if they experience it a lot, they might change their hobbies, routines, habits because they feel so unsafe.”

Two truths and a lie: Election Day edition

The Second City
NETWORK

C.J.
Tuor

» [@SecondCity
Netwk](#)

Tuesday is Election Day. It's not a very important election (choosing a new president) or even a semi-important election (choosing the new Lay's potato chip flavor). But it's happening!

Since most of the candidates are not currently being cast in a Marvel film, the media has been slow to share their stories. Fear not! We've got the pre-election coverage you need to be a (mostly informed) Illinois voter. Below are three "facts" about each candidate—two are true; one is false—thus making this the most accurate political breakdown you will ever read.

Pat Quinn

Bruce Rauner

JOB OVERVIEW: THE GOVERNOR

The governor approves and vetoes bills, serves as commander in chief of our military and decides whether he/she wants the top or bottom bunk in his/her eventual jail cell.

PAT QUINN (D)

1. Graduated from Northwestern University School of Law
2. Created the Illinois Hardest Hit program to help families keep their homes during the recession
3. Played second base for the Chicago Cubs from '94-'98

BRUCE RAUNER (R)

1. Former head of Choose Chicago and got his MBA from Harvard
2. Has a plan to save Illinois' budget and promises to share it ... just as soon as he's elected
3. Relaxes by swimming in a giant vault of gold coins

JOB OVERVIEW: SENATOR

Senators make laws, represent states on national issues and take part in sexy scandals.

DICK DURBIN (D)

1. Expected to win. As The Cook Political Report says, voters want the "solid D."

2. Publicly denounced America's use of torture and once smack-talked a Republican congressman on Facebook
3. World record holder for eating the world's largest calzone

JIM 'THE MILK DUD' OBERWEIS (R)

1. Currently Illinois state senator and owner of Oberweis Dairy
2. Wants to protect your concealed babies (anti-abortion) and firearms (pro-NRA)
3. Oberweis Dairy's ice cream is not delicious.

JOB OVERVIEW: ATTORNEY GENERAL

Conducts Illinois' legal affairs, provides counsel for other state agencies and is the people's advocate responsible for getting you CASH for your injuries!

LISA MADIGAN (D)

1. First woman in history to serve as attorney general of Illinois
2. Refused to defend gay marriage ban or attack health care reform
3. Was the original voice of Helga from the Nickelodeon cartoon "Hey Arnold!"

PAUL SCHIMPF (R)

1. Retired U.S. Marine Corps officer who was born on an Air Force base
2. Helped Iraq prosecute Saddam Hussein
3. They've yet to discover a needle that can penetrate his skin.

JOB OVERVIEW: SECRETARY OF STATE

Personally silkscreens every single Illinois driver's license by hand.

JESSE WHITE (D)

1. The first African-American to hold this office. This win would be a five-peat.
2. Initiated safety legislation in 2007 that decreased fatal teen crashes in Illinois by 40 percent
3. Killed him a bear when he was only 3

MIKE WEBSTER (R)

1. School Board President for Cass District 63, has won the position three times
2. Accuses Jesse White of nepotism and patronage
3. Since his death in '02, has become a symbol of the dangers of head injuries in the NFL

Were you able to separate truth from lies? If you'd couldn't, don't worry! Your vote still counts the same as everyone else's ... unless you vote Independent.

ON THE WIRE

Mick Swasko | REDEYE

"The hardest part I do is waiting to go," Nik Wallenda said after taking a stroll over the Chicago River on Sunday night.

About 50,000 spectators felt the same way, Nik—600 or so feet below you.

It probably made for somewhat thrilling TV, but it wasn't nearly as captivating on the ground. It was quite the chilly, 90-minute wait just to see a tiny red dot inch across the skyline.

Here's our recap of the event.

5:38 p.m. Posted up at the corner of Wacker Drive and Wabash Avenue. If someone around here decided to sell mini-flasks of Fireball whiskey and peppermint schnapps, that person could retire comfortably tomorrow.

5:50 p.m. Guy in a Green Bay Packers hat behind me is talking about his fantasy football lineup. He's not going to care in the slightest if this guy falls.

6:01 p.m. "If I were Nik Wallenda, I would be stressed and throw up," I think to myself, as the official start time for the event passes.

6:07 p.m. Wallenda trolls the entire crowd by prancing around a bit on the wire. Everyone whoops, hollers and takes horribly blurry photos. The actual walk won't start for more than an hour.

6:09 p.m. "I'm confused," the man next to me says.

6:33 p.m. I begin to regret the tacos I ate at 2 a.m., and think about apologizing to the British people behind me.

6:55 p.m. I announce to the crowd that I am a reporter, and several sources are reporting the walk won't start until 7:45. I fear for my life.

7:24 p.m. "I would totally do that right now, 100 percent, if you gave me a parachute," the bro next to me says.

7:37 p.m. Wallenda makes good on his threat to walk off the Marina City towers, the entire crowd cheers, then holds its breath and tries not to barf from the stress.

NIK WALLENDA REACHES SUCH GREAT HEIGHTS—AFTER THE WORLD WAITS

7:43 p.m. Wallenda breaks the unofficial world record for crossing the Chicago River without the use of a bridge. Everyone applauds and secretly is kind of wondering if this would have been better just to watch at home on TV with a stiff drink.

7:44 p.m. Everyone collectively decides to get a different view. No one is trampled, that I am aware of.

8:02 p.m. Walk No. 2 starts, and every resident of Marina City looks like they're about to fall off their balconies.

8:05 p.m. Cheers and applause ring out, and dozens of people desperately try to get on television as Wallenda completes the walk. This is what an entire city breathing a sigh of relief sounds like.

WALLEND A BREAKS 2 WORLD RECORDS

By Curt Wagner | REDEYE

Daredevil Nik Wallenda broke two world records Sunday, doing two tightrope walks—one over the Chicago River and one wearing a blindfold.

For the first walk, Wallenda stepped more than two city blocks uphill at a 19-degree incline from the west tower of Marina City to the Leo Burnett Building.

The walk broke the world record for an incline high-wire walk, according to a representative from Guinness World Records who presented Wallenda with his certificate during the Discovery Channel broadcast of the event.

It set more of a personal record for Wallenda. The 35-year-old had never attempted such a steep angle, and no one from his famous “Flying Wallendas” family had accomplished a skyscraper walk of such height—more than 50 stories above the river.

For his second feat of the night, Wallenda walked blindfolded from Marina City’s west tower to the east tower, breaking the world record for the highest blindfolded high-wire walk.

He did both walks without a net or harness.

“I felt confident,” Wallenda said during an interview on the Discovery broadcast, saying his rigorous training in Sarasota, Fla., helped him prepare for Sunday. “I felt ready.” @SHOWPATROL

Shooter waits outside mosque

Chicago Tribune

A 41-year-old man is facing felony charges after he waited for someone he knew to leave Friday prayer near a Bridgeview mosque so he could shoot him, officials said.

According to witnesses, at about 1:05 p.m. Rame R. Joudeh came up behind a 36-year-old Burbank man after Friday prayers in the 9200 block of Beloit Avenue, village of Bridgeview spokesman Ray Hanania said in a news release Sunday morning.

Joudeh was ordered held in lieu of $1 million in a hearing Sunday before Cook County Criminal Court Judge Maria Kuriakos Ciesil.

According to witnesses, the two were outside of the mosque and an adjacent school when Joudeh sprayed a chemical in the victim's face and then fired a shot in his back, the release said. The victim suffered a graze wound to his back and was treated on the scene.

"This was an isolated incident between two people who knew each other and at no time was there a threat to any of the children in the nearby Aqsa School or the mosque," Bridgeview Police Chief Walter Klimek said in the release.

Witnesses identified Joudeh as the attacker and he was caught after the shooting.

Joudeh, of the 18000 block of Buckingham Drive in Orland Park, was charged with attempted murder, aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and reckless discharge of a weapon.

How are you paying?

YOUNG MONEY

Megan

✉ mcrepeau@tribune.com
✉ @crepeau

Remember when the cashier would ask you "cash or credit" while you were checking out? Me neither. The modern urban hip young Millennial on the go has tens of ways to pay for things, and none of them are even close to perfect. Here, I speak with the accrued wisdom of someone who buys a lot of crap (and then writes about it) to tell you: Here's what works and what doesn't.

Cash

Pro: It's accepted everywhere, greenbacks cannot be hacked and pulling out a wad of cash makes you feel like a TOTAL baller.

Con: If someone steals it or you drop it on the Red Line tracks, it is gone forever—you can't go whining to your bank like a credit card user can.

Debit cards

Pro: They're convenient, accepted nearly everywhere and you're spending your own money rather than going into debt.

Con: If someone steals it or you drop it on the Red Line tracks, you can whine to your bank—but it's your real money that's been stolen, and it could take a while to get back to you. Also, overdraft fees REALLY suck.

Credit cards

Pro: They're convenient, accepted nearly everywhere and you can get rewards and build up credit like a real grown-up. Plus, if you get hacked or robbed, it's not really your money at stake. Spending what you don't have is a great American tradition

Con: Did someone say "crippling debt spiral"?

Product-specific apps (Starbucks, Uber, etc.)

Pro: They're mega-convenient, you can earn rewards and it's easy to itemize your budget.

Con: Eternal self-hatred after realizing just how much you spent on "[bleep] it, I'll just get an Uber" nights.

Mobile payments (Google Wallet, Apple Pay, etc.)

Pro: Also mega-convenient—everything is on your phone anyway, so why not?

Con: Increases the chokehold that Google and Apple have on your tiny life. Are they counting every breath you take? Would you put it past them?

Sheriff's deputies inspect the wreckage of the Virgin Galactic SpaceShipTwo in a desert field north of Mojave, Calif. GETTY IMAGES

Virgin Galactic wants new craft by next year

Virgin Galactic's chief executive said Sunday that the company is planning to finish work on a second rocket plane by year's end, despite the fatal crash of the SpaceShipTwo.

George Whitesides said the company is working closely with investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board to determine what caused the rocket plane to break apart in midair on Friday morning, killing one pilot and seriously injuring another.

"The second spaceship is very advanced in its construction," he said. "We need to work closely with the NTSB ... to work out as rapidly as we can what happened, and then to move forward. We're hopeful we can make rapid progress."

His remarks followed a somber assessment of the future of Virgin Galactic by founder Richard Branson, who hoped to be among the first passengers on its maiden voyage that had been expected early next year.

"We really thought by March of next year, we'd be there," the billionaire entrepreneur told the BBC after arriving in Mojave on Saturday. "Something went wrong. We need to find out what went wrong and fix it."

Christopher Hart, the NTSB's acting chairman, said Saturday that the investigation of the crash site in the desert about 20 miles northeast of Mojave would take a few more days. A final report could take as long as a year, he said.

Friday's test flight of SpaceShipTwo was the first time it was to fly by firing a new rocket motor using a plastic-based fuel—leading to speculation that the engine may have been a factor in the crash.

Until May, SpaceShipTwo had used a different motor that burned a rubber-based fuel.

Whitesides said Virgin Galactic had spent $500 million so far in its quest to fly tourists into space. The company had insurance, he said, that would help cover the cost of Friday's crash.

Test pilot Michael Alsbury, 39, died in the crash. His body was found near the fuselage of the main wreckage, authorities said.

Surviving pilot Peter Siebold, 43, suffered a shoulder injury and was "alert and talking with his family and doctors" on Saturday according to Scaled Composites, the company that designed SpaceShipTwo.

Running JOKES

Humor starts with Bears star Matt Forte in a grass skirt

By Andy Frye | FOR REDEYE

Regardless of whether the Bears are headed to the Super Bowl this season, everyone knows what to expect from running back Matt Forte. Speed, consistency and reliability week in and week out.

Moreover, you'd expect to see Forte making a great catch and even dancing into the end zone. But would you expect to see him dancing in a grass skirt? Well, not until now.

Forte is part of the cast of the comedy called "Tough Season 2," a Web mockumentary series, put together in conjunction with The Onion and technology company Lenovo. The comedy features Forte along with other NFL stars such as Indianapolis quarterback Andrew Luck, Denver receiver Wes Welker and Washington running back Albert Morris.

"I'm pretty reserved to people I've just met, but once I get to know you, you'll see the humor come out," he said.

Along with fellow football pros, Forte gets to clown around with "Drunk History's" Tim Baltz and comedian Brad Blevins. In one episode called "Cheeseburger in a Coconut," Blevins sings a beachy tune reminiscent of Jimmy Buffett's "Cheeseburger in Paradise" while Forte and Morris dance in grass skirts and their NFL jerseys.

Forte said one of the best parts is the fun that comes with the improvisational nature and being put on the spot.

"Me and Brad Blevins were sitting on the couch just doing silly stuff, going back and forth," Forte said. "It wasn't even really supposed to be included, but they ended up rolling the camera and using it."

When asked which players possess the best acting skills, Forte hinted he's among top picks.

"I'd have to go with me or Wes [Welker]," he said. "We just look more natural."

Forte said his talents as a stealth comedian work well with the camera-ready composure of the others, especially the Denver star.

"I use many different types of humor, whether it's sarcasm or just general silliness," he said. "Wes has had a little more experience being on TV than some of the other guys, but Andrew [Luck] has been pretty good too."

While Welker brings perhaps the most TV-friendly finesse to the set, in Forte's opinion, Luck has a knack for memorizing lines and nailing monologues. Morris, on the other hand, brings an ease. In one "Tough Season 2" extra, Morris brings a Tim Allen-like enthusiasm to the task of building a beach Tiki lounge.

"Each person—to be in something like this—uses a lot of their own personality to make it seem more natural," Forte said. "You definitely see some sarcasm in there."

One underlying theme of "Tough Season," which debuted at the beginning of the 2013 NFL season, is fantasy football and fans' obsession with it. Working on-set, Baltz, a huge Bears fan, and Blevins, a fantasy devotee in his own right, all but assure fantasy football comes up in conversation.

"I just think it's funny how much people get really crazy about it," Forte said. "Most time people tell me, 'Good job, you helped me win.' But if you have a bad game, on Twitter they can really come at you."

In the most recent episode of "Tough Season 2," Forte is informed by a friend that he's been dropped from his fantasy squad.

Another Bears nut, Ashton Kutcher, does more than check up on his favorite team. The actor checks in with his favorite running back.

Matt Forte in "Tough Season 2"

"I've talked to him through Twitter; he follows me and I follow him," Forte said, adding there's no fantasy football coaching or pep talks from Kutcher. "Sometimes we send direct messages and all that. But we don't Skype or anything."

Chicago Marathon winner tests positive for doping

Chicago Tribune

Another multiple women's winner of the Bank of America Chicago Marathon has run afoul of doping control. Kenya's Rita Jeptoo, who won a second straight title Oct. 12, tested positive for the blood-boosting drug EPO in an out-of-competition test Sept. 25, according to a Kenya track federation official cited in news reports Friday.

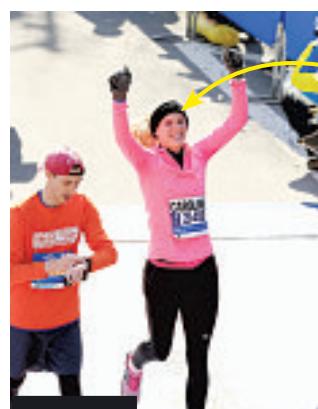

Jeptoo's agent, Federico Rosa, confirmed he learned of the positive test "a few days ago," according to the Associated Press.

Last April, Russia's Liliya Shobukhova was stripped of her three consecutive Chicago marathon titles (2009-11) and banned two years for abnormalities in her biological passport, which contains data that can be used to identify doping.

The Tribune confirmed Jeptoo's positive, first reported by RunBlogRun, came in analysis of her "A" sample. She has the right to ask for testing of the "B" sample (stored at the same time) and, should that be positive, she can appeal.

THE DIGIT

8 Notre Dame fell to the eighth spot in both the Associated Press and coaches polls, with TCU and Michigan State jumping ahead. Both polls had the same teams in the Top 5: 1) Mississippi State, 2) Florida State, 3) Auburn, 4) Alabama and 5) Oregon.

THE DIGIT

3:26:33 That was the finish time of Caroline Wozniacki, who ran the New York City Marathon, on Sunday. The 24-year-old Dane, a former world No. 1 tennis player who is currently ranked eighth, ran her first marathon for a charity benefitting youth runners. Fellow pro tennis player Serena Williams greeted Wozniacki at the finish line.

Indiana player's condition improving

Indiana forward Devin Davis has the use of all his extremities and is improving since being struck by a car driven by teammate Emmitt Holt. Davis has been at IU Health Bloomington Hospital with a head injury since Saturday morning when he was hit after exiting the car.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Relationships are going through some shifts as Venus encourages you to focus on quality, not quantity. Don't attempt to date 14 people at once when just one special sweetheart will do.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You could receive some good news about your career or education as Jupiter shines its light on you. Maybe you'll get that raise or promotion. Share your achievement with your honey.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

An intense full moon is bringing a lot of pent-up emotion to the surface. If you've been casually dating someone, maybe it's time to get more serious. Or if you've had your doubts about your partner being healthy for you, voice your concerns now.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You could be contemplating a career change as Jupiter stirs up some restless energies. As an Air sign, it's important for you to feel challenged and inspired by your work. Brainstorm with your partner about how you might manifest your ideal job situation.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You're analyzing a complicated relationship, taking note of its undercurrents. Mercury is encouraging you to keep thinking about love in a deep way. Don't assume that the surface side is its only dimension.

Aries March 21-April 19

Even if you're just an average-looking Joe or Jill, you'll be oozing sexuality everywhere. If you've been hoping to attract attention from a certain someone, now is the time.

Taurus April 20-May 20

If you and your honey have been dating but avoiding any major commitment, you'll want to make a big change. Or if you've been married forever, you'll long to find a way to spice things up.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You're going back and forth about a romantic situation, unsure about which way to turn. The moon is adding to your confusion. Maybe you're attracted to somebody, but you're unwilling to risk getting hurt again. Honor your true feelings.

Cancer June 22-July 22

As Mercury, you're ready to come out of your shell. You'll say yes to all of those party invitations. You'll make plans to go away with your friends this winter. It's good for you to get out there and circulate.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

A career situation has you preoccupied, and you need to apply yourself to advancing your position. Jupiter reminds you that sometimes you need to put your personal life to the side to deal with more practical matters.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You might need to confront someone who has been taking advantage. The sun shows you that even if you care about someone, it's not right to let them harm you. Stand up for yourself.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You probably don't feel like you can be honest with your sweetheart because you're going through some difficult stuff. Keeping everything to yourself can make you feel more lonely and isolated.

Henry Cavill spotted in Chicago over weekend

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Henry Cavill—who played Superman and his alter ego Clark Kent in 2013's "Man of Steel" and will reprise his role in the highly anticipated "Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice"—was spotted Saturday among the trendy club patrons at The Underground.

Cavill is scheduled to film "Batman v. Superman" in the Chicago area Monday through Nov. 14, according to Chicago Film Office director Rich Moskal. The Zack Snyder-directed movie—which stars Cavill as Superman, Ben Affleck as Batman and Gal Gadot as Wonder Woman—has spent nearly six months in production in Michigan.

"We head to Chicago after this, then we have a couple more locations," Snyder said last week on the "Stoney and Bill" radio show on WXYT-FM 97.1 The Ticket in Detroit. Moskal didn't reveal specific filming locations for the Chicago-area shoot.

"Permits haven't been issued yet," Moskal said in an email. "They're still working up a plan."

Snyder filmed the previous Superman movie, "Man of Steel," in Chicago and the suburbs in 2011. The inside of Willis Tower served as the Daily Planet, the newspaper where Superman's alter ego, Clark Kent, landed a job at the end of the film. Western suburb Plano served as Kent's fictional hometown, Smallville, and the Yorkville area served as the site of Kent's farmhouse.

Plano Mayor Bob Hausler said the movie has not reached out to him about returning to film in Plano, but it appears the cast and crew will return to the Yorkville area. The farmhouse set built for the first movie and then torn down afterward was rebuilt late last year on the same plot of land, just outside of Yorkville on Route 126.

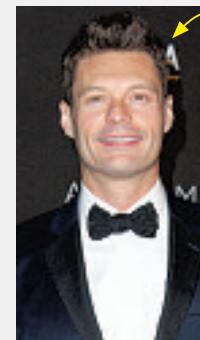

Director Christopher Nolan filmed part of "Batman Begins" and most of sequel "The Dark Knight" in the Chicago area before moving the franchise to Pittsburgh and elsewhere for "The Dark Knight Rises." "Batman v. Superman"—scheduled to hit theaters March 25, 2016—will not be a continuation of that Batman storyline, but instead a reboot of the iconic character.

THE DIGIT

More than 1.3 million

Sorry, Britney. The one-time pop princess very well could be dethroned this week as Taylor Swift threatens to surpass Ms. Spears' 2000 sales record for an album by a woman. With one day remaining in "1989's" debut tracking week, industry forecasters were predicting Saturday that T.Swift could shake her way past Spears' "Oops! ... I Did It Again's" 1.319 million copies sold, thr.com reports.

THE QUOTE

"I can't say that I've ever had a thing for bearded women, but I have to confess, Sexy George R.R. Martin is ... er ... sexy. But there is something deeply disturbing about being turned on by yourself."

— "Game of Thrones" author George R.R. Martin, writing on his blog Friday in response to Playboy posting a video of a model in a skimpy Halloween costume based on the fantasy writer, complete with beard, hat and glasses, The Hollywood Reporter reports.

Beware the nerds

Sounds like "Buffy" actress Eliza Dushku's Halloween was more trick, less treat. According to eonline.com, Dushku's $4,000 Louis Vuitton bag—a gift from Sharon Osbourne, because of course it was—was snatched from her Providence, R.I., hotel by two Halloween-costumed robbers as she arrived to appear at Rhode Island Comic Con on Friday. Luckily, the thieves, one of whom was dressed as Caesar, were apprehended thanks to security footage. Plus, Dushku got the first publicity she's had since "Bring It On." So, win-win.

Marilyn Manson and Johnny Depp

Dark duet

Apparently Johnny Depp and Marilyn Manson are besties. That's the only conclusion we've come to after ew.com reported Depp joined Manson on-stage yet again to play guitar while Manson sang vocals on "The Beautiful People" at Manson's Halloween show Friday night. The pair have joined forces previously, covering "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" and "You're So Vain" on separate occasions. With the leather jumpsuit and pale face make-up Depp donned in "Edward Scissorhands," we really should have seen this coming.

Let it go, Frank

The Big Hurt was a big hit on Friday's episode of "Windy City Live," the Tribune reports. For Halloween, White Sox legend Frank Thomas appeared on the show dressed as a character from "Frozen." "It's on repeat," Thomas said of his family's love of the popular Disney flick. "I see it every day. Every day. They made me buy this costume. They love it." Thomas said each member of his family was keeping with the "Frozen" theme and he was dressed as blonde-haired Kristoff. We would have liked it better had he gone with Elsa, but whatever.
